Summary of key findings for parents

This provision is good

- The manager is determined to provide children and their families with the highest-quality service. Management has made effective improvements to the setting, such as successfully increasing parents' involvement in their children's learning.
- Children respond well to staff's calm and consistent reminders about the expected rules for behaviour. Staff provide children with meaningful opportunities to talk about their feelings. Children are very kind and helpful and form close relationships with staff and each other.
- Key persons know children well and ensure planning is firmly based around children's changing interests. Children are eager to learn and make confident choices from the wide range of stimulating resources and activities available both indoors and outside.
- All staff place a strong emphasis on promoting children's language and communication skill. Children are confident to express their views, knowing that adults are interested in what they have to say.

It is not yet outstanding because:

- Occasionally, the staff do not give enough consideration to how children of different ages can be fully involved when taking part in planned activities together.
- Monitoring of staff practice is not always fully successful in ensuring each child enjoys highly challenging learning experiences that promote their rapid progress.
What the setting needs to do to improve further

To further improve the quality of the early years provision the provider should:

- support the involvement of children of different ages when they take part in planned activities together
- monitor the quality of teaching and learning more systematically to develop practice and ensure that each child consistently benefits from highly challenging learning experiences that help them make rapid progress in their learning.

Inspection findings

Effectiveness of the leadership and management is good

Management effectively evaluates the setting to ensure outcomes for children continue to improve. For example, they are currently introducing Forest School sessions. These are aimed at helping children become more self-assured while helping them learn to take safe risks in a natural environment. Safeguarding is effective. Management places a strong emphasis on ensuring all staff have a good understanding of child protection issues and the action to take to keep children safe. Staff implement sound procedures to promote children’s good health, safety and welfare. Staff have regular opportunities to attend relevant training to help them update their knowledge and skills. Termly supervision meetings provide meaningful opportunities for staff to discuss their role and any concerns with the manager. Additional funding is used well to support the progress of individual children.

Quality of teaching, learning and assessment is good

Staff provide many thoughtfully resourced experiences that successfully encourage children to be curious and active learners. Children confidently lead their own play. They excitedly mix together different materials and share their discoveries with staff and other children. They offer their own suggestions about why things happen or how things work. Staff encourage children to talk about their home lives and use this information well in planning to extend children’s learning. Staff work closely with parents and other professionals to ensure children receive well-targeted support to help close any gaps in their learning.

Personal development, behaviour and welfare are good

Children settle well and enjoy their time at the setting. Parents are complimentary about the very caring atmosphere. They value the online assessment system for keeping them up to date about their children’s learning. Staff make very good use of the school environment to expand children’s experiences. Children enjoy using the school playground and they eat their lunches in the school dining hall. Staff use these times to provide simple explanations of what school life will be like. All staff are skilful at promoting children’s understanding of how nutritious food and physical exercise contribute to a healthy lifestyle.

Outcomes for children are good

Children are making good progress given their starting points and capabilities. They develop the key skills to support their move on to school. Older children express themselves well and talk confidently about events in their lives. Children share ideas and play together cooperatively, showing tolerance and understanding of the needs of others. All children are developing good literacy skills and some children can write their name unaided. Children are becoming increasingly independent and learn to take responsibility for their own personal care.
